

WHAT IF ONE OPPORTUNITY CHANGED EVERYTHING?

For many aspiring lawyers, the greatest barriers aren't ambition or ability - they're financial. At the College of Law, we're committed to removing those barriers so that everyone has equitable access to Practical Legal Training (PLT) and the opportunity to enter the legal profession.

Our aim is to nurture and empower future lawyers who will use their skills to strengthen justice and the communities they serve.

THE COLLEGE OF LAW COMMUNITY JUSTICE BURSARY

The Community Justice Bursary is available to eligible students commencing the PLT Program, or students who intend to commence the PLT program within the next 12 months. The Bursary covers students working part-time or full-time and enrolment in any PLT course offered by the College. It reduces the cost of the PLT course by half for eligible recipients, making the transition to legal practice more financially accessible for those serving in the community legal sector.

Applicants must meet the following requirements at the time of application:

1Be a domestic student

Applicants must be an Australian citizen or permanent resident.

2Be a final-year law student or law graduate.*3*Be employed in any role legal or non-legal – at a community law organisation that includes but is not limited to:

- A Community Legal Centre
- An Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions
 - A Legal Aid office
- An indigenous legal service

4Applicants must submit their application before enrolling in their course.

INTERESTED IN APPLYING?

STEP 1Contact the College to register your interest or check your eligibility.

Send an email to Michelle Nulty, Director Customer and Student Engagement at support@collaw.edu.au

STEP 2Provide supporting documents:

1. Evidence of current employment (for example, a letter from an employer or recent payslip), and
2. Proof of completed or final-year law studies, and
3. Proof of status as a domestic student in Australia (e.g. Australian citizenship certificate, passport, or evidence of permanent residency).

Check out collaw.edu.au/scholarships to see how else we can support you.